DOC TALK

Raquel Rodriguez, M.D.

INFLUENZA INFECTION

Influenza (commonly called “the flu”) is a contagious respiratory illness caused by influenza viruses. Infection with influenza viruses can result in illness ranging from mild to severe and life-threatening complications.

Symptoms of flu include fever (usually high), headache, extreme tiredness, dry cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, and muscle aches. Gastro-intestinal symptoms, such as nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea, are much more common among children than adults.

The main way that influenza viruses are spread is from person to person in respiratory droplets of coughs and sneezes. (This is called “droplet spread.”) This can happen when droplets from a cough or sneeze of an infected person are propelled (generally up to 3 feet) through the air and deposited on the mouth or nose of people nearby. Though much less frequent, the viruses also can be spread when a person touches respiratory droplets on another person or an object and then touches their own mouth or nose (or someone else’s mouth or nose) before washing their hands.

Scientific studies show that adults can shed virus from 1 day before developing symptoms to up to 7 days after getting sick. Young children can shed virus for longer than 7 days. In general, however, more viruses are shed earlier in the illness than later.

Every year hundreds of thousands of people are hospitalized and tens of thousands die as a result of influenza infection. Influenza usually affects 10-20% of the population during winter annual epidemics. Individuals, their families, social and work commitments are all affected, and the burden that the disease inflicts is considerable. Influenza imposes a serious drain on healthcare systems and the economy in general. It is estimated that up to 7 working days are lost each time an individual is infected with influenza, and in 1995, 79 million working days were lost in the US as a result of the disease. The economic impact of an influenza epidemic in the US has been estimated to have exceeded $20 billion in 1998 alone. Despite the annual burden that influenza inflicts, the serious nature of the disease is often underestimated by physicians.

The main control option for the management of influenza is annual vaccination, although recommendations for its use and uptake vary by country. Treatments have included readily available symptomatic relief medications and also a high and inappropriate use of antibiotics for this viral disease. However, there are now new specific antiviral agents, the neuraminidase inhibitors (NAIs), which are available for the treatment and prevention of influenza infections in all populations. These agents are effective against all clinically relevant strains of influenza viruses (influenza A and B). Three antiviral drugs (amantadine, rimantadine, and oseltamivir) are approved and commercially available for use in preventing flu. All of these medications are prescription drugs, and a doctor should be consulted before the drugs are used for preventing the flu.

In order for the NAIs to be maximally effective in treating influenza they must be started within 48 hours of the onset of symptoms. They will be more effective the earlier that they can be administered.

The following steps may help prevent the spread of respiratory illnesses like flu:

- Avoid close contact with people who are sick.
- When you are sick, keep your distance from others to protect them from getting sick too.
- If possible, stay home from work, school, and errands when you are sick. You will help prevent others from catching your illness.
- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when coughing or sneezing. It may prevent those around you from getting sick.

Germs are often spread when a person touches something that is contaminated with germs and then touches his or her eyes, nose, or mouth.

In summary influenza infection is a disease that represents a great risk for you and for the people around you and is very important that the diagnosis and the appropriate treatment is start on a timely manner, so go to your physician early rather than late.

Have a healthy new year. ▼

HOROSCOPE

by Jacqueline

Romance is the tone for this month. On the 6th, the full moon in Leo brings love into the air. The 8th, Venus will go into Aries making it urgent to find true love. By the 14th, Saint Valentine's Day, all should desire that romantic evening with someone special. The New moon on the 20th in Pisces will tell you whether or not you found your true love. However you look at it, this will be an emotional month. Because Mars goes into Taurus on the 3rd, the best thing to do is follow your own personal values and beliefs and don't let your emotions steer you off the path.

Aries This month you will find matters of the heart more important than work. After the 8th when Venus goes into your sign, the hunt for that true love will be on. Be careful not to look for just security and safety. Communication instead of actions will help you find your hearts desires.

Taurus Your actions turn from the home to your career this month. After the 3rd when Mars enters your sign, you will find yourself looking for advancement. You have the foresight now to choose the right path and the luck to get it. Be flexible and give it a shot. Don't let the habits you have created hold you back.

Gemini After the family obligations of last month you will find yourself looking into your financial matters more carefully now. Relax with your family obligations, you have paid your debt. This month will be a good month to get back to taking care of your own financial needs. By the 25th when Mercury goes into Pisces, you should be well on your way to seeing the way out of debt.

Cancer Last months recognition at work will turn to this month's recognition in love. You will be looking for that special someone to show you the romantic nurturing that you have shown them. Don't wait for them to create that romantic setting. Use your enhanced creativity this month and you will find that you may get double what you expected.

Leo Looking at where you want to be in the future is the tone for this month. Your emotional and creative endeavors are heightened as well as your sense of urgency. Be careful not to get caught up in the present without looking where it is going to end up or you will find yourself with a broken heart.

Virgo Socializing is the key for you this month. It's a great time to get yourself out into the public, not only for the business connections, which will be of financial benefit, but also for your love life. Reconsider your goals and narrow down those who will benefit you the most. This will make you more efficient with your time.

Libra This month you will be reconsidering the direction your life has been going. You will be looking into where things went wrong and how to correct them. People and opportunities from the past will be appearing again. Stick to your guns and let them pass. They will not be to your benefit. Keep in mind that you are responsible for your actions and you have free will.

Scorpio It is time to clean things up from the past that you have left unattended. Responsibility and obligation is the tone for you this month. Your serious nature may make your mate uncomfortable. Reassure them that you will be more attentive next month and finish your business. Don't linger. If you do, they will come back to haunt you later this year.

Sagittarius Work and money are the key this month. Be careful with your financial matters. This is not the month for you to go on a shopping spree. If you keep your attention on work and not love you will be fine financially. If you choose romance, be creative, you don't have to buy love. With a little effort and not money, you can enhance your love life.

Capricorn The decisions of your life you made last month can now be put into action, especially in regard to your personal values and beliefs. This is your month for planting those long-term seeds. Out of your own sheer will and hard work they will manifest. Don't forget about your love life; it will bring you the release that you need.

Aquarius Happy Solar Return! Your spotlight is brighter than normal. Remember life is not measured by the number of breaths you take, but by the moments that take your breath away. This month expect to take fewer breaths than normal. Expect the unexpected and don't let your emotions get in the way. If you try to control your experiences, you will find heartache. So, sit back, watch the action and enjoy.

Pisces The beginning of the month you many feel a little foggy. That will clear by the 19th when the sun goes into your sign. Don't make any decisions until after the 25th, when Mercury goes into Pisces. The New moon, sun and Mercury will form a stellium by the end of the month, which will give you the insight in what direction to go to find your peace. ▼

For those who want to know: A stellium is when 3 or more planets are extremely close to each other in the sky. They form a stronger energy by working together. It's kinda like drafting in auto racing.

Tea Time

with Miss T

Holy eyeliner, WonderWoman! What happened in Brevard County last month? I couldn't even stop by to see a friend and have a nice meal without bad news. It's enough to knot your wig!

First there's the disappointment of High Tolerance in not being able to put together the Alex Sanchez appearance. Maybe next year, after they've had time for few fundraising projects, they can make it happen. I know that Drake, with the full support of his parents will succeed in forming a strong organization that will be able to fulfill its goals.

Next, rumor has it that the Show Time Deli is for sale, with the owners looking North for new opportunities.

Further down US 1, I arrived at the Bellwood and found out that Don Buck, Val's life-partner of 30 years has passed away. I know we all extend our profound condolences to Val and the staff at the Bellwood. Don passed away the Sunday after Christmas after a short illness. If you're in Titusville, stop in and have a bite with Val. Also, if you have some kind of event that needs a place, give Val a call and he'll do his best to accommodate you.

No sooner had I gotten home from seeing Val, than I was contacted about the passing of Sonny Donovan in Cocoa. Sonny was an important part of the caring scene there, see Rev. Osdras' column on page 10 for more about the life of this wonderful person.

The next news from Cocoa was that Tabu is kaput. Rich and Eric concluded a deal about a week ago to rent the building to someone who will change it into an English Pub type restaurant/bar. If you need bar staff or a performer, the whole staff is looking for work.

And finally in Melbourne, Thump is gone. Something about not enough attendance. Gee, I guess getting a great promoter to put together something new in a fantastic venue, then starting and stopping the event, then basing your final decision on attendance the week after New Years isn't a real good business plan! Oh well. I predict that we haven't seen the last of the promoter (after all, he wasn't the problem) and who knows, maybe something can be resurrected at the same venue without the eventus interruptus.

Now if all of that news makes you want to get the hell out of Dodge, Melbourne real estate agent extraordinaire, Darlene Jones, has a new fishing camp, Shady Oaks Campground in Inglis. They're doing a ladies RV and Camping Weekend Valentine's weekend – if you're interested, check out www.BubbbaFinAndFeather.com

If you're going to be in Brevard for Valentine's your only choice (and probably your first one anyway) is Fireball at the Cold Keg. It's another great Saturday event, but you know that the rest of the week at the Cold Keg is a blast too. I was there for karaoke last week and everyone was having a great time. Kelli Randell reported that the previous Thursday was one of the best she's hosted. Also I see in the stars signs that our very own Jacqueline may soon be available in Melbourne on Fridays for your own personal readings. Once again, the Cold Keg is proving to be the place to be every day of the week in Melbourne.

A wisp of whatever was going on in Brevard even drifted down to Vero a few weeks back, but fortunately silly non-gays couldn't ruin Bliss. Sundays are still goin' on there. It's the place to be for dancing and watching the talents of all the performers Devine has lined up. It's well worth checking out. Stop in and say hi to Lee Olson behind the bar, groove to Elton's tunes, see the show and check out the constantly changing crowd of friendly men and women that make up Bliss on Sundays at Bombay Louie's in Vero.

Talking about crowds, there were quite a few men at Club Blyrd Cage to check out the dancers John has rounded up for the Nest. Yummy! Who would of thought you could fit all those people, plus

We Remember...

Well the tree is down, the gifts are put in their proper place and the decorations are again put away for another time and we together begin a New Year.

Some of us begin our new year a little differently than last. Some of us have lost loved ones during the past year. The loss of a parent, a friend, a partner or an acquaintance that has died and has gone before us to the other side of life. We know we must start another year without them and we mourn their loss but know as hard as it is we must move on.

Recently, Brevard County lost a very long time friend of many. Dale Donovan, many remember him, as "Sonny" died suddenly in his home this past week. Sonny a big man with an even bigger heart was a big help to our food pantry, helping those less fortunate than ourselves. He also collected blankets for the homeless and for a time, would hand out lunches to those same homeless on our beaches. He was a very dedicated Deacon in our Church and was also a long time member of the Breaking the Silence MCC Community.

It has always been my thought that we meet others in our lives for good reason. It may be to share the joys or the challenges of life but we certainly learn much from one another. It is a part of that gift of life that together we share so much of ourselves with one another; and we are touched by our loving concern and respect for one another.

Sonny's gift of dedication and heart to his fellow community was very evident. He took life seriously when needed but also had a fun loving streak for life when necessary. He stepped forward for those facing discrimination on any level and knew when to step back and contemplate and pray on a difficult challenge in our community.

He was a man of endeavor who opened the first "gay" bar in Brevard many years ago. He took a chance for our community to fellowship when others wouldn't have dared in those days.

I thank God so very much for the gift of the "Sonny's" in our lives. It's those gifted people who give so much of themselves for others that make this world a more peace-filled and loving place to grow and learn from one another. It's a great lesson learned that we should never take one another for granted.

So we begin a "New" year a time of new beginnings and challenges, but we must never forget those who have gone before us and may we continue to live by what we have learned from others and share that knowledge by our own love and our own giftedness.

So to the many "Sonny's" of our lives we thank you, we remember you and may we continue to share your blessings with others.

In His Name,

Rev. Mark Osdras, Pastor

three dancers in that little room. John promises that when it warms up a bit the dancers will work outside, too – that'll put the dick in Tiki Bar (um, that made more sense after a few cocktails) and I hear that any women who'd like to dance should talk to John, too. Outside in the main room the show is going on Club B!rd Cage style with the amazing Eda Bagel in from Pennsylvania on Valentine's – I had a lot to tell you about her, but ran out of room, so you'll just have to go see. Special is just what Kelli Randell's Hearts of Love benefit for babies with AIDS on the 13th, starting at 10 is. Not just a great lineup of performers Hearts of Love will have an auction as well as a 50-50 raffle as well. Once again, Club B!rd Cage is doing more to reaching out to the larger community. See you there.

Right down the street, VIP's is planning more of everything for everyone. Along with movies on Sundays, darts on Mondays, Sean's Klubbin' Karaoke Song and Dance Fest going full blast on Wednesdays, men's night on Thursdays and Lin reading palms before the shows on weekends, VIP's has a new underwear night on Tuesdays – there's a special for those in undies (hmmmm, sounds like a photo op to me).

Speaking of photos, I promise, Ms. Blue Nose, that I'll make absolutely sure that there are no more pictures, however small, that might cause you concern, lest you see to it that we have even fewer places to go to. I know you're reading this and I know you know who you are. In the future, if you have a problem with this publication, you should contact me directly.

Speaking of contact – hurry and contact Paris Lynne at VIP's or via email if you want to enter the first Miss Gay Treasure Coast contest. You gotta get your entry in by next Friday. See the ad on page 11 for details.

Vote '04 A Change tidbit: according to THE DAILY MIS-LEAD (<http://daily.misleader.org>) "Late last year, President Bush promised retirees that 'if there's a Medicare reform bill signed by me, corporations have no intention to dump retirees [from their existing drug coverage]...What we're talking about is trust.' The White House and its congressional allies backed up Bush's assertion by claiming the bill included a special tax subsidy to 'encourage employers' to retain prescription-drug coverage' for their retirees' and not to cut them off.

But just three months after Bush's pledge, the Wall Street Journal now reports that the White House quietly added 'a little-noticed provision' to the bill that allows companies to severely reduce - or almost completely terminate - their retirees' drug coverage "without losing out on the new subsidy." In other words, the president did not just break his promise to sign a bill that prevents seniors from losing their existing drug coverage. He actually acted to reward companies who cut off their retirees with a lavish new tax break.

The provision was no mere oversight by the president. The major backers of the provision were Lucent Technologies, General Motors, Dow Chemical and SBC Communications - all major campaign contributors to the president. According to the non-partisan Center for Responsive Politics, executives from those companies have donated almost $140,000 in hard money and $2.5 million in soft money to Bush and his party since 2000." ▼
